Key facts

- FIS Trade & Distribution Manager is the first dedicated secondary loan trading platform that automates the full trade lifecycle.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jun. 16, 2026-- The secondary loan market processes trillions of dollars in annual volume, yet most institutions still manage trade workflows through manual processes and systems designed for other asset classes, creating settlement risk, audit exposure, and compounding operational drag. To address this, global financial technology leader FIS® has today announced the launch of FIS Trade & Distribution Manager, a purpose-built secondary loan trading platform that automates the full trade lifecycle. The solution forms part of the FIS Commercial Lending Suite™, and connects every stage of the commercial loan lifecycle in a single ecosystem.

"Commercial loan trading has operated on workarounds for too long," said Steve Sabin, Head of Lending at FIS. "Banks that want to scale in the secondary market shouldn't have to bridge their trading desks and servicing teams through manual processes. This platform removes that friction and for the first time, gives institutions the infrastructure to enter or grow in the secondary market without rebuilding their operations to accommodate it."

FIS Trade & Distribution Manager automates the full secondary loan trade lifecycle including trade capture, settlement, participant allocation and position reconciliation. It provides real-time trade status visibility, integrates with FIS Commercial Loan Servicing, eliminating the data handoff that has historically created operational drag between front-office and back-office teams. Structured, auditable workflows replace informal processes, and real-time pricing and electronic trade execution are available through integrations with FIS SyndTrak™, FIS LendAmend™, and multiple external partners, with the platform bringing trading desks and servicing operations together in a way the market has never had before.

The solution forms part of the FIS Commercial Lending Suite™, an end-to-end platform that now spans six integrated solutions: FIS Commercial Loan Origination, FIS Credit Assessment, FIS Commercial Loan Servicing, FIS SyndTrak™, FIS LendAmend™, and FIS Trade & Distribution Manager. Institutions managing commercial lending on the suite gain a single platform across the full loan lifecycle, without the reconciliation overhead that multi-vendor approaches typically carry.
