Questions On Benefits

Q- Are you confirming that FIS does not have a defined benefit plan for the 19,000 U.S. employees? How can that be?

A- FIS does not maintain a defined benefit pension plan for its U.S. employees. FIS does however maintain a defined contribution 401(k) plan for its U.S. employees. It is not uncommon for a company to maintain a defined contribution plan but not a defined benefit pension plan. According to the 2004 Annual Report for the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, which insures defined benefit pension plans, there are less than 35,000 insured defined benefit plans today compared to a high of over 100,000 insured defined benefit plans in the 1980's.

Q - How will the merger impact the distribution of benefits and the continued accrual of service under the Certegy Pension Plan? Will benefits still be paid to retirees and future retirees who are vested in the plan? After the merger, will Certegy (FIS) stop funding that pension plan?

A- The Certegy pension plan is subject to special Internal Revenue Service and Department of Labor rules that protect a participant's rights and benefits in the pension plan and that require the plan sponsor to meet certain plan funding requirements. Generally, all accrued benefits under the pension plan must be maintained and may not be taken away from participants. We review our benefit plans regularly to determine if changes are advisable. As part of the merger process, we will also be reviewing our benefit plans to determine how and when to best integrate the benefit plans of both Certegy and FIS. If we decide to make any material changes to the pension plan, you will be provided notice of such changes.

Q- Certegy provides severance arrangements when jobs are eliminated, with severance pay based on years of service. Will this severance plan remain in effect after the merger?

A- The merger agreement provides that Certegy's welfare plans, such as the severance plan, will remain in effect for at least six months following the merger. No decision has been made with respect to the severance plan for periods after the end of this six-month period. An integration team will be reviewing the benefit plans of Certegy and FIS to determine how to best integrate the plans of the two companies.

Questions On Different Business Units

Q- The "Updated Employee Communications" email dated 9/23 mentions integration teams have been formed for several specific HR/compensation based initiatives, then generically mentions facilities and "other business operations". What are the specific facilities and "other business operations" that are under review, or are planned to be reviewed, by integration teams?

A- Since the merger announcement we have received many questions and we anticipate more questions to arise as time progresses. Some of these questions may be for specific business units, facilities, or certain areas. This is mentioned in order to proactively address other questions from Certegy employees.

Questions On Facilities

Q- The below text was taken from part of a September 26, 2005 article in Jacksonville.com. Will all or part of the Roosevelt Blvd operations be moving to Jacksonville? If so, which ones and how much advance notice will employees be given?

Kennedy and his senior management team will be relocating to Jacksonville to run FIS and will continue the growth of Fidelity's local operation since it moved here from Santa Barbara, Calif., two years ago. "The Certegy transaction is a major win for Jacksonville," Foley said. Fidelity picked up 1,400 local employees when it acquired the Alltel businesses, the deal which prompted its move of the headquarters to Jacksonville. It is in the process of constructing another seven-story building as part of its Riverside Avenue headquarters complex and expects to have 2,700 employees in Jacksonville by the end of 2006 after that building opens, working for the various Fidelity companies. All of them will be headquartered in Jacksonville. "We're going to have a very strong presence," Foley said. He said the company has land available for future growth. And given his intention to continue acquiring other businesses, the company may very well need it.

A- At this time, we do not anticipate closing the St. Pete Roosevelt office.

Questions On Stock Plan

Q- In relation to the stock option Q&A on adjustment for the dividend, will each option exercise price be reduced by $3.75?

A- The exact adjustment ratio will not be known until the merger is effective. To maintain the value of the options, the number of options is increased and the exercise price is decreased. Because of the increase in the number of options, the decrease in the exercise price will likely be less than $3.75 per share. If you have outstanding stock options, you will be receiving more detailed information regarding this adjustment to the stock options for the dividend.
